V STOMACH Ochre/Sympathy

The Stomach is where we take in the food and drink to sustain our bodies and it needs friendship as much as it needs food. Refinement of this circuit returns us to the source. The stomach loves ordinariness and produces compassion.

The opposite is compulsion, being a do-gooder. The positive states are: sympathy, gratification, consolation and romance, while the negative states are compulsion (fear of not getting to the food), compulsive eating (negative stimulation from the stomach causing alienation from father or provider figure), compulsive personality (believing that if one is good will be rewarded) and conditioned reaction (like a rat in a maze smelling the cheese it cannot get).

The Tarot card is the Moon, which is Past Lives in the Osho Zen Deck. In the left eye the cards are the sixes and the circuit checks with only one organ; the Adrenals which turn us on for romance.

The creature of the stomach is the dog, always hungry and friendly. A country is Mexico.

For the first part of Taurus let everything you eat be good for the stomach and enjoy it while hanging out with real friends. These are people in whose company you are O.K. to fart.
